Scientific Director, Energy and Environmental Policy, School of Public Policy, University of Calgary

Assistant Professor, Department of Economics, University of Calgary

Dr. Jennifer Winter (PhD, Calgary) is an Assistant Professor and Scientific Director of the Energy and Environmental Policy research division at The School of Public Policy, University of Calgary. Jennifer also directs the Canadian Network for Energy Policy Research and Analysis. Her research evaluates climate policies, and examines the effects of government regulation and policy on energy development and the associated consequences and trade-offs.

Jennifer has published academic and policy papers, including five on carbon pricing, three examining Canadian energy literacy, two on the safe transportation of crude oil, four on market access opportunities for Canadian hydrocarbons, and one on the idea of “green jobs.” Current research projects include differences and similarities in Indigenous, government and industry perspectives on consultation and engagement; social impacts of hydraulic fracturing; comparing provincial emission-reduction policies; and federalism and climate policy. Dr. Winter is also co-editing two books; one on the experiences of Indigenous communities with resource development in Canada, and the second on measuring the impacts of energy infrastructure.

Dr. Winter is actively engaged in increasing public understanding of energy and environmental policy issues; recognition of her efforts include a 2014 Young Women in Energy Award, being named one of Alberta Oil Magazine’s Top 35 Under 35 in 2016, being named one of Avenue Calgary’s Top 40 Under 40 in 2017, and being named one of Canada’s 2019 Clean50 and Clean16 by Delta Management. She has advised the Government of Alberta in several capacities, including participating in two of the 2015 Royalty Review’s Working Groups and advising the Energy Diversification Advisory Committee. Dr. Winter also serves on the Future Leaders Board of Directors of the World Petroleum Council Canada, the advisory board for the Alberta Narratives Project, the City of Calgary’s Climate Panel, is a member of the Mitigation Expert Panel at the Canadian Climate and Clean Growth Institute, and is a member of Global Affairs Canada’s Environmental Assessment Advisory Group. Prior to joining The School of Public Policy, Jennifer worked at Human Resources and Skills Development Canada, researching Canadian labour markets.
